

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Systems and methods for inspecting food products are presented in which contrast images are generated by subtracting reference data from an acquired sample image.

Processing of the data is performed on the contrast image, which results in improved

5 defect detection.